Economic Security as a Scientific Category: Theoretical and Methodological Aspect of Research

Bezpieczeństwo ekonomiczne jako kategoria badawcza: teoretyczny
i metodologiczny aspekt badań

ABSTRAKT

W artykule zostaną omówione problemy dotyczące fenomenu bezpieczeństwa narodowego. Badanie tego zjawiska w aspekcie zarówno teoretycznym, jak i praktycznym jest szczegółowym przedmiotem analizy dokonanej przez autora. We współczesnych warunkach globalizacji ekonomicznej świata oraz integracji państw z międzynarodowym systemem ekonomicznym, pojawiają się problemy bezpieczeństwa narodowego. Poziom rozwoju ekonomicznego państw determinuje ich potencjalne możliwości w zakresie bezpieczeństwa. Bezpieczeństwo ekonomiczne państw jest zależne od poziomu rozwoju gospodarczego danego kraju i jego regionów. Jest ono gwarantem niezależności ekonomicznej państwa oraz rozwoju warunków społecznych współczesnych społeczeństw.

The attention of the state and society to questions of the national security protection of Russia became characteristic feature of the beginning of the XXI century that influenced to form scientific approaches for studying this phenomenon in the theory and practice. In turn processes of transformation and reforming of economical and legal bases of the Russian Federation functioning can't but take into account the national security of the state. Besides, globalization of world economy and integration of Russia into the international economic system also bring to the forefront a problem of national security protection of Russia in modern conditions. The external economic factors of national security become priority in the case of providing economic security of Russia because the level of economic development of the country determines its potential possibilities of protection against external and internal risks.

Economic security of the country depends on the level of national economy development, its competitiveness in the world market. According to the foreign practice, economic security is the guarantor of the state economic independence, promoting social and economic security of society, weakening of social contradictions, increasing of citizens' welfare. In this regard providing economic security of Russia is considered among important national priorities of development of the Russian state and society. It should be added that traditionally economic security is positioned as an important qualitative parameter of economic system of the country, defining by its opportunity and ability to normal functioning and development of a national economy by steady resource provision, to maintenance of a worthy standard of living of the country population and systematic realization of its national interests. Economic security of Russia consists of its regions' economic security. The main principles of economic security conception of Russia are formulated in modern scientific literature. However, questions of providing regional economic security are insufficiently studied, because of many reasons. First, there are specific features of regional development of economy of the Russian Federation territorial subjects, which leave a certain mark on requirements to providing economic security of each separate region and transformation of economic security evaluation criteria. Secondly, there is the lack of uniform universal methodological approach to research the questions of providing economic security at regional level. And, at last, there are certain difficulties in the course of carrying out economic security evaluation of the Russian Federation territorial subjects regarding the solution of the problem about statistical data standardization.

These factors significantly complicate formation of the uniform standards of an economic security evaluation at the level of the Russian Federation territorial subject and development of strategic and operational programs of its providing, considering the peculiarities of regional economic development which have essential impact on purposes, procedures and the actions realized by central and local authorities. Thus, the actuality of the research of the contents and ways of providing economic security of Russia and its regions, and also development of concrete practical recommendations how to increase the level of economic security within creation of security management mechanism for providing and maintenance economic security is becoming obvious.

One of the important national priorities of the Russian Federation at the present stage of the exchange relations development is providing economic security of the country and its regions [1, 2]. According to the Strategy of National Security of the Russian Federation, the concept of national security means "a condition of the personal security, society and the state from internal and external threats which allows to provide constitutional laws, freedoms, worthy quality and standard of living, the sovereignty, territorial integrity and sustainable development of the Russian Federation, defense and safety of the state” [3]. The structure of national security can be presented in the following view (figure 1) [13, p. 76].

According to the majority of experts, economic security is the most important feature of the structure of the country national security. Actuality of the research both providing economic security and scientific approaches to definition of this concept appeared during transition of Russia to market system and didn't lose the importance of it up to the present. According to the world practice, problems of economic security should be considered in the context of the national security protection of the whole state.

Economic security as a structural component of national security system along with national defence capability, social security and protection against ecological disasters is directed on neutralization of threats of the country growth and development. Thus all directions are interconnected and they complement each other (Figure 2) [27, p. 196].

Economic security as an economic category is relatively began to use recently in domestic economic literature that is caused by absence of identical concept in foreign economic science where it is accepted to apply the term “national security”. According to V.V. Morunov, the methodology of definition the category “economic security” in Russia differs from the meaning of this expression abroad [25, p. 102]. As it is mentioned above, economic threats of Russia development, appeared during market transformations in economy of the 1990th, put in the forefront the need of research of theoretical and methodological and applied aspects of providing economic security of the country. Macroeconomic conditions, in which approaches of theoretical understanding of this problem were formed and developed, effected on the genesis of category content of economic security [25, p. 102].

The concept of economic security is rather structured, and all elements of this system are closely connected each other. It is possible to examine this conception according two criteria: spacial and social directed (figure 3) [27, p. 79]. Besides, interaction of economic security elements leads to formation of the difficult multilevel system including such structural elements, as: economic independence, stability of national economy, ability to self-development and progress [27, p. 197]. In turn Y.U. Radyukova and I.N. Shamayev stress the following components of economic security forming hierarchical system [27, p. 198]:

- the macroeconomic – economic security (economic security of national economy),

- the mesoeconomic – economic security of regions and branches,
- the microeconomic – economic security of the enterprises (firms) and households.

The multidimensionality and complexity of this phenomenon in the Russian science and practice caused the existence of a number of different approaches to the treatment of the definition “economic security” (table 1).

Systematizing the definitions of the concept “economic security” given above as scientific category within this research it is necessary to specify its essence and the contents. So, economic security represents the scientific economic category providing existence of abilities, opportunities and readiness of national economy to guarantee social stability and economic development of the country in a context of the most effective satisfaction of society’s requirements and protection of the state’s interests in various areas against internal and external threats. It should be noted especially connection of economic security with concepts of stability and development (economic growth), as the lack of economy stable development involves essential reduction of its survival opportunities, low resilience to internal and external threats. In turn, stability as the significant characteristic of economic system defines degree of durability and reliability of its components, system communications, and ability to stand against to internal and external threats. The directions of providing economic security at federal and regional levels are shown in table 2 [1; 3–6; 11, p. 17; 19, p. 151–152; 20, p. 98; 22, p. 224; 23, p. 27; 29, p. 36; 33, p. 526–527].
